Altacor add BioLon® to its growing portfolio

Altacor is pleased to announce that from 1st April 2016 it is assuming the exclusive responsibility from Kestrel Ophthalmics for the marketing of BioLon®, a viscoelastic for use in cataract and other ophthalmic surgery.

BioLon® contains highly engineered, ultrapure hyaluronic acid (1%) with optimised viscosity in an easy to use 1ml syringe which is designed to be bubble free. BioLon® can be reliably used wherever anterior chamber depth maintenance is important. It protects endothelial cells and is easy to remove after the procedure is complete due to its cohesive nature.

BioLon® is the first product in Altacor's new ophthalmic surgical portfolio which will be expanded with further complimentary products.

BioLon® will continue to be available direct from Alloga or AAH. Please contact your Altacor Representative for further information or call Altacor on 01223 421411 and we will be pleased to assist you.
